

Educational Session

Bock KJ, Dyson JJ.

Riddle Me This: What is the Toughest Movement System Examination? The Integumentary!

America Physical Therapy Association Combined Sections Meeting. Denver, CO. February 13, 2020.

In this session, the speakers will explore answers to the riddle of functional instruction of the integumentary system as the most important part of the movement system. Physical therapists are often called upon to work with patients who have a variety of pathologies involving the integumentary system and must integrate these pathologies into a movement system assessment. Learning how to treat these integumentary disorders within the movement system can be challenging. The presenters will discuss how the integumentary system affects movement and discuss various strategies for instructing students and professionals how to screen, examine, evaluate, and treat patients with these issues.